Basketball has long been one of the most popular sports in the United States. In 1997, the Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA) formed to give female players a league in which to play the sport at the professional level. Starting with eight teams, the WNBA has expanded over time—with several new teams joining the WNBA, some franchises disbanding, and three teams still playing in their original cities. WNBA is a fun and informative book series about the women's pro basketball league. With striking color photographs, a fun Slam Dunk WNBA Trivia section, and a useful index, this series discusses the past, present, and future of the now twelve teams that draw excited fans to women's basketball games each season.

UNBREAKABLE SPORTS RECORDS?

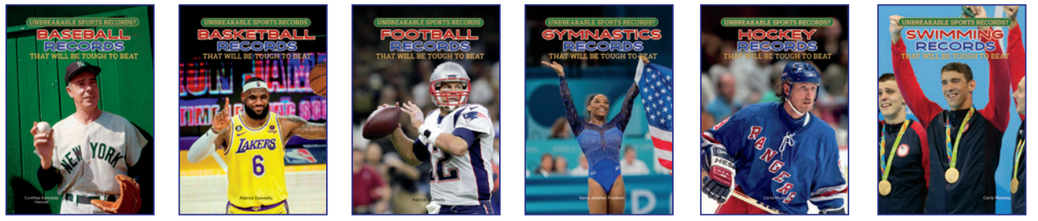

Unbreakable Sports Records?

One of the most exciting parts of being a sports fan today is watching the best athletes of this era set and break athletic records. Some records are continually updated as new sports stars take their turn at the top. Other records have remained in place for years, or even decades, challenging the top contenders to write their names in the record books. A few records seem unlikely to be eclipsed by new athletes anytime soon, if ever. Unbreakable? is a fun and informative book series about the least likely records to be broken in five of the most popular sports played today. With striking color photographs, a fun quiz, and a useful index, this series tells the stories of some of the most impressive sports records ever set—and which athletes have the best shot at beating them.

CHAPTER THREE

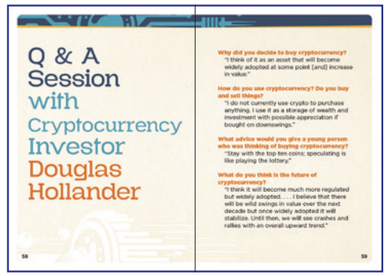

Popular Cryptocurrencies

Nakamoto limited the number of bitcoins that could be created. The maximum number is 21 million. When the maximum is reached, bitcoin miners will get validation fees but no rewards for mining. There will be a limited number of bitcoins but more people who want to use them. According to the CoinDCX blog, "In theory, as the availability of new bitcoins decreases, their value could potentially continue to [rise], making each unit more valuable."

As of August 2024, there were about 19.74 million bitcoins. But the platform is set up so that fewer bitcoins are mined each year. Experts think the last bitcoin will be mined around 2140. Bitcoins may become more valuable as they become rarer. But no one is sure if this will happen.

Expensive Pies

On May 22, 2010, Laszlo Hanyecz made the first Bitcoin purchase. He paid 10,000 for two pizzas. Hanyecz was an early bitcoin miner. At that time, he could mine several thousand bitcoins a day. The cost of those two pizzas was equal to over a billion dollars in 2024 Bitcoin prices.

Q & A Session with Cryptocurrency Investor Douglas Hollander

Why did you decide to buy cryptocurrency?
"I think of it as an asset that will become widely adopted at some point [and] increase in value."

How do you use cryptocurrency? Do you buy and sell things?
"I do not currently use crypto to purchase anything. I use it as a storage of wealth and investment with possible appreciation if bought on downswings."

What advice would you give a young person who was thinking of buying cryptocurrency?
"Stay with the top ten coins; speculating is like playing the lottery."

What do you think is the future of cryptocurrency?
"I think it will become much more regulated but widely adopted. . . . I believe that there will be wild swings in value over the next decade but once widely adopted it will stabilize. Until then, we will see crashes and rallies with an overall upward trend."

CHAPTER TWO

What It's Like to Have an Allergy

Fortunately, there are ways some people can work around pet allergies. In Humane Voices, the U.S. Humane Society's podcast, Hamrick shared a few suggestions. First, keep the allergy sufferer's bedroom pet free. The bedroom door should remain closed as much as possible. This room will become the person's safe zone. People with pet allergies should wash their hands and face after touching the animal. The pet and its bedding should also be washed at least once a week. Keep medication, such as Benadryl, around in case of flare-ups. People sometimes find that allergic reactions become less severe after they have had extended exposure to a pet.

CHAPTER THREE

How to Manage an Allergy

Where to Look for Help

The Internet can be a valuable resource for allergy sufferers. It is useful for finding information such as pollen counts or cross-contact in certain food brands. Many blogs and podcasts also focus on ways to cope with allergies. But be sure to confirm any advice, even from the most reputable website, with a doctor before trusting it.

One blog is hosted by a medical practice called Carolina Pines, ENT. The abbreviation ENT stands for ear, nose, and throat medicine. This blog lists numerous suggestions for dealing with allergies. For example, people who are allergic to pollen or other outdoor allergens may find that swimming in a pool is easier on their allergies than swimming in a lake or a pond. Some newer styles of swimsuits have long sleeves. They not only provide protection from sunburn but can also protect skin from allergens.

Outstanding Journalists

People around the world depend on journalists to report the news accurately and objectively every day. Many journalists deliver stories from the field as the news is happening. Some even risk their own lives to report from dangerous places, such as natural disasters or war zones. Other journalists present the news from anchor desks on morning shows, nightly newscasts, or their own programs. With striking color photographs, a fun Find Out More section, and a useful index, this series will engage readers looking to learn about journalists—and perhaps even inspire young people to consider the profession of journalism one day themselves.

You're Hired!

Entering the workforce is an exciting step for young people eager to share their talents and skills with the rest of the world. Part-time jobs in a variety of industries can help kids identify their professional strengths and weaknesses as they start earning their own money. The You're Hired! series discusses the most common first jobs available to teens. Some young people may enjoy working as cashiers, food-service workers, or camp counselors. Other young people may prefer the challenge of starting their own babysitting, dog-walking, or lawncare business.
