

Odd One Out

Learning to recognize and name differences and similarities is an important skill for early learners to develop. This skill is strengthened with the help of vibrant volumes that encourage young readers to find the odd one out in a wide variety of groups and patterns. Simple, short sentences invite readers to look for something that doesn't quite belong among groups of colorful photographs. From finding a dog among a school of fish to spotting different shapes, readers are encouraged to compare and contrast things they might see around them every day.

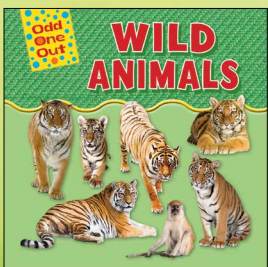

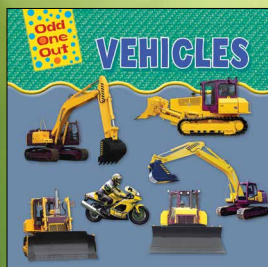

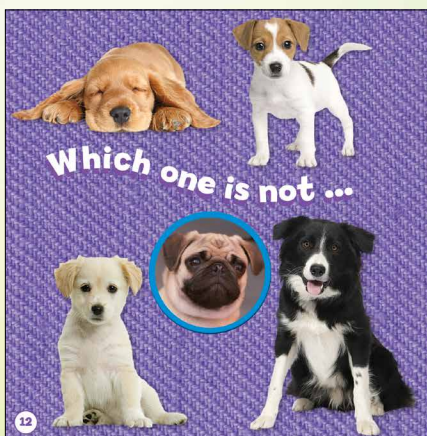

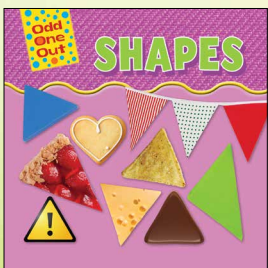

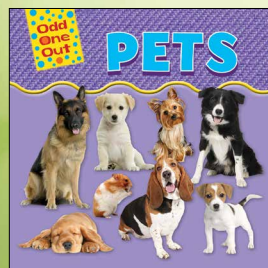

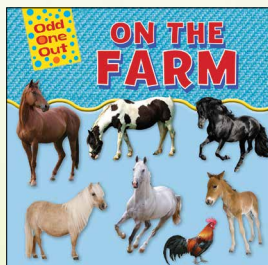

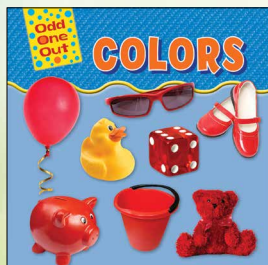

- Wide variety of topics and examples include many high-interest areas, such as animals and vehicles
- Achievable text is designed to be read independently or out loud with the help of an adult
- Interactive tone helps emphasize that learning essential concepts can be fun

Dinosaur Reptiles

Dinosaurs were a type of reptile. They came in many shapes and sizes. Some could fly, and some could swim. Some had scales, others had feathers. Some were even covered in armor plates!

Reptiles are animals with dry scaly skin that lay soft-shelled eggs on land. Their legs stick out either side of their body, so they waddle as they walk. Crocodiles and lizards are reptiles. A dinosaur is a type of reptile that lived long ago.

Dinosaurs' legs were under their bodies. This let them run much faster than other reptiles.

Can you match each dinosaur or reptile picture to the right description?

1. Allosaurus

Allosaurus was a large meat-eating dinosaur. It walked on two legs. It had a long tail, and sharp claws and teeth.

2. Velociraptor

Velociraptors were about the size of a turkey. They had long claws and feathers, but could not fly. They could run very fast.

3. Pteranodon

Pteranodon were large flying reptiles that lived at the same time as dinosaurs. They had a long crest on the back of their heads.

4. Plesiosaur

Plesiosaurs were reptiles that lived in the ocean. They swam using four flippers. They lived at the same time as the dinosaurs.
